

WILL PEACE ARISE? ` Chords by Hayden Johnson lyrics by Meagan Maria Devauld copyright 2016
Reggae (dub)

VS: I think it's time to contemplate our history war means war, it's never peace, don't you tell no lies yes it's part of you, and it's part of me but can't you see that when you blame another, oh, you deny the part you played the stories been told, centuries old and now we've got to face our reality, we've got to bring peace

Ch: And so I cry... will peace arise? Will peace arise, inside?

VS: You think the solution will arise in temples of gold you've got to buy your way to eternity all the while you pretend to be free not bound by your laws, or the laws of God I know that you never had to fight for your right to be here and so you give them a price, and destroy their humanity you destroy what you see when it's not in your plan the world in your hands

Ch: And so I cry... will peace arise? Will peace arise, inside?

VS: There was a time when peaceful, man could live but to go back to that place, first we got to forgive when you hold on to your defeat, history is bound to repeat, bound to repeat and so when the prophets scream in your name they can't be ignored, no the truth will arise, fill the streets with noise when they say we all can be saved, if we just believe, believe in peace

Ch: And so I cry... will peace arise? Will peace arise, oh, "will peace arise, will peace arise, will peace arise.."
